

How dumb can they get, thinking that they can break into one of these machines?

Criminal of the week:

Polite crook gave other customer needed spare change then robs store: On April 23, at about 6:26 a.m., in Columbus, a scruffy looking dude sporting a nasty looking gold jogging suit, entered the United Dairy store on South Hague Avenue, and walked up to the counter. Although he looked a little grubby he was very mannerable, he even gave another customer some spare change who was a little short on their purchase. After that customer had left, the courteous ol' dude whipped out a shiny pistol and told the clerk he wanted "All the cash in the register." The clerk did as told. The polite, but scruffy looking crook fled on foot. You can pick up some extra cash if you know something, say something (614) 645-4664 Cops want this stanken breef dude bad!
